

Lucienne Day Flower Brick

Lucienne Day,

Description

Lucienne Day Centenary Edition Flower Brick by Lucienne Day.

twentytwentyone celebrates Lucienne Day's centenary with the release of her Flower Brick design in a limited, numbered edition of 100 pieces (25 of each model and size).

Britain's foremost twentieth-century textile designer, Lucienne Day originally developed her Flower Brick designs in the early 1960s. They were put into production by Bristol Potteries in 1966.

The flower brick has its origins in the decorative Delftware produced during the eighteenth century to hold ornate floral displays. The Lucienne Day design was for two sizes, with a trio of surface decorations, always with a black lid.

Available in small and large sizes in two different designs: Papercut (taupe/pink) and Triangles (black white).

Papercut design is arrayed horizontally (in pink) and vertically (in taupe) on alternate faces of the Flower Brick.

A total of 100 Centenary Edition Flower Bricks have been produced (25 of each design). Each Flower Brick is individually stamped and numbered.

Please note that it is not possible to specify which number you would like to order as they are sold consecutively.

The Centenary Edition Flower Brick is launched with a collaborative exhibition, conceived and hosted by twentytwentyone and on display at our River Street showroom 21st - 24th June. Day for Flowers sees leading figures from the design world create their own floral tribute to Lucienne Day using single or multiple Flower Bricks.
