

Modern Kantha throw

WitekGolik, 2017

Description

Modern Kantha throw by WitekGolik for Tiipoi.

The Modern Kantha collection of throws and cushions offers a contemporary version of traditional Indian Kantha textiles.

Kantha textiles originated in East India, emerging out of the simple hand-embroidery that was used to piece together old pieces of fabric and saris to create layered cushions and quilts. The classic Kantha pattern consists of repetitive rows of running stitch that covers the entire surface of a fabric, quilting it to its base layer.

Born of thrift and necessity, Kantha has now been given a distinctly modern look. Modern Kantha throws feature traditional linear Kantha stitching and are available in single or double sizes.

Available to in single or double bed sizes. Single size in teal, with teal and contrast grey stitching; reverse in grey with grey and contrasting teal stitching. Double size in blue with contrasting grey stitching; reverse in grey with contrast blue and yellow stitching.

A coordinating Modern Kantha cushion is also available.

Made of traditionally dyed 100% cotton sateen, quilted with polyfill.

Handmade in India.
