

S203 Storage Unit

John and Sylvia Reid,

Description

S203 Storage Unit by John and Sylvia Reid

Pioneering mid-century designers John and Sylvia Reid helped to define our understanding of contemporary furniture, shaping the way we live today.

The S-Range, originally designed in the 1960s, comprises eight iconic pieces of furniture, the distinctive, highly-crafted collection taking inspiration from the prominent Scandinavian designers of the time.

Meticulous attention to detail and craftsmanship have been used to accurately reproduce the S203 storage unit, which was first manufactured by Stag furniture in the 1960s.

The S203 unit is crafted with a teak exterior and contrasting beech veneer for the interior detailing. The sideboard features two doors which are complemented with handcrafted L-shaped handles.

The doors have a 270-degree opening hinge, which has been recreated from the original designs of the S-Range to ensure its authenticity with the initial models. Inside the sideboard, there are two pull-out adjustable trays with a removable felt-lined cutlery tray. The interior teak components of the drawers use finger-jointed fittings and traditional wooden runners.

This model is the smallest version of the S-Range, to suit more compact spaces or to fit alongside the S201 or S202 models.

Each piece of furniture from the S-Range comes with certification badge to mark the authenticity and design credentials.
