This item is a one-off clearance item to be sold on a first order, first served basis.

Build your own architectural landmark with this miniature model of the Barbican Estate. Designed by architectural practice Chamberlin, Powell and Bon from 1973 to 1976, the Barbican remains one of London's most compelling experiments in high-rise urban living and its towers are a distinctive presence on the London skyline.

Award-winning Polish design studio Zupagrafika celebrate modernist architecture with their paper cut-out models dedicated to London's brutalist landmarks. The hand-drawn buildings are printed on recycled paper and each set includes information on the architect and the location.

Certain to appeal to architects and laymen alike, this set contains all you need to assemble your own model of the Barbican's Lauderdale tower.
