

A 330S pendant light

Alvar Aalto, 1939

Description

A330 pendant light by Alvar Aalto for Artek.

Aalto's attention to detail meant that he often created lamps to complement his architecture. The Golden Bell is a particular fine example of Aalto's humanist modernism. First seen at the Savoy restaurant in Helsinki, where it continues to light and delight customers to this day, once again proving Aalto's skill in producing timeless classics.

Hand-spun in steel or brass, the Golden Bell is available in a range of finishes:

- chromed steel shade, inside white coated, white plastic cable
- white steel shade inside white coated, white plastic cable
- black steel shade, inside white coated, black plastic cable
- Savoy version: unlacquered brass shade, outside polished, inside raw not varnished, black textile cable.
