

Standard Ware Mug

Description

Standard Ware Mug by Leach Pottery

The Leach Pottery is based in St Ives, Cornwall and is amongst the most revered studio potteries around the world. Established in 1920 by Bernard Leach and Shoji Hamada, the iconic Standard Ware range is still produced on site today by a team of international potters, apprentices and volunteers.

The mugs are available in two sizes and reduction fired, with a choice of two glazes, Dolomite (white) or Tenmoku (black).

Tenmoku is an iron-rich glaze, providing a deep black finish. Originating in China, the glaze reveals a red-brown colour when the glaze is applied more thinly.

Dolomite is a creamy white glaze, taking its name from the high percentage of the dolomite mineral used in the mix. The iron in the clay also comes through, offering a gentle blue hue to the finish.

Due to the unpredictable nature of the firing process, there can be small variations in the colour and size, making each piece unique.
